COOLIDGE RAPS MELLON INQUIRY

Objects to Probers' Hiring of Special Counsel.

SENDS MESSAGE TO SENATE

Declares "State of the Union Requires Return to Government Under Usual Form of the Law of the Land"—Mellon Claims "Interference Has Made Impossible the Proper Exercise" of His Duty.

Washington, April 12.—President Coolidge sent a message to the senate attacking the conduct of the senate committee investigating the bureau of internal revenue of the treasury department.

The president's message followed receipt of a letter from Secretary of the Treasury Mellon which contained a distinct threat of resigning.

"It is time we returned to a government under and in accordance with the usual form of the law in the land," the president said. "The state of the Union requires the immediate adoption of such a course."

Singling out the appointment of Francis J. Heney, San Francisco attorney, by the committee to be its prosecutor, as an instance of the senate's stepping outside the law in its eagerness to investigate, the president called on the senate to halt such conduct, declaring "under such procedure instead of government of law we have a government of lawlessness. Against continuance of such condition I enter my solemn protest."

Secretary Mellon wrote the president that through interference, proper exercise of the duty of secretary of the treasury is made impossible and "I must advise you that neither I nor any other man of character can longer take responsibility for the treasury."

Mellon added that from the course followed by Senator Couzens in the investigation, "it is now obvious that his sole purpose is to vent some personal grievance against me."

"The inquiry, so far as showing that I favor my own interests, has failed completely," Mellon stated in his letter. "Any constructive purpose of the committee has now been abandoned. Already the present investigation has greatly injured the efficiency of the income tax organization and the sufferer is every taxpayer. Government business can not continue to be conducted under frequent interference by investigations of congress, entirely destructive in their character."

"When through unnecessary interference the proper exercise of this duty is rendered impossible I must advise you that neither I nor any other man of character can longer take responsibility for the treasury. Government by investigation is not government."

President Coolidge said: "Against the continuation of such a condition I enter my solemn protest and give notice that in my opinion the departments ought not to be required to participate in it."

"The executive branch has nothing that it would wish to conceal from any legitimate inquiry on the part of the senate. But it is recognized both by law and by custom that there is certain confidential information which it would be detrimental to the public service to reveal."

"Such information as can be disclosed I shall always unhesitatingly direct to be laid before the senate. I recognize also that it is perfectly legitimate for the senate to indulge in political discussion and partisan criticism. But the attack which is being made on the treasury department goes beyond any of these legitimate requirements."

Donahay Plants Trees.

Columbus, April 12.—With a silver-plated spade, Governor Donahay threw the first earth in the planting of two young trees in the state house grounds, constituting the first step in the comprehensive plan of beautification outlined by him some weeks ago. Governor Donahay was assisted by Professor Norman W. Schreiner of the forestry department of Ohio State university.

Woman Murdered.

Youngstown, O., April 12.—The body of Mrs. Elizabeth Stille was found in a ravine here with the head crushed. Police said she had been attacked and then murdered. Mrs. Stille was the mother of three children.

WORK APPROVES PROPOSAL

Construction of Tunnel Through Continental Divide Planned.

Washington, April 12.—An application of the Moffat tunnel commission for a right-of-way over public lands for the construction of a tunnel through the Continental divide between Gilpin and Grand counties, Colorado, to facilitate transportation between many sections of the west, has been tentatively approved by Secretary Work. The commission plans to build a tunnel approximately 9,200 feet above the sea level with entrances near the head waters of South Boulder creek and the Frazier river, for use by standard gauge railroads, automobiles and other vehicles and for transportation of power and water and for telephone and telegraph lines. The tunnel, it was said, will open up for development rich timber, agriculture, grazing and mineral resources of northwest Colorado, southwest Wyoming and northeast Utah.

STATE OFFICIALS TO INSPECT STEERS

Symptom of Foot and Mouth Disease Found in Ohio.

Columbus, April 12.—Symptoms of foot and mouth disease found in a shipment of 38 steers from the St. Paul stockyards has been reported by Dr. Stuckel, local veterinarian at Luckey, O., according to State Director of Agriculture Truax.

State Veterinarian F. A. Zimmer and Dr. DeFossett, new federal inspector in charge of Ohio, immediately left for Luckey to inspect these animals.

Three of the steers were found to show symptoms, abrasions, sores beneath the tongue and increased salivation. After a careful examination it was not determined whether the disease was present or not. Since calves are very susceptible, one was inoculated with secretions and discharges from a suspected animal and final decision as to the nature of the disease present at Luckey will be determined by this calf's reaction. The stockyards and all cars on sidings at that point were quarantined and a state veterinarian placed in charge to enforce the ban.

The two state and federal representatives also visited Fostoria, where the steers in this shipment were fed, but an examination of all live stock in the yards failed to reveal any indication of the presence of this dread disease.

Denies Bootlegging Charge.

Chicago, April 12.—P. D. Pinkinson, long sought by federal officials on charges that he is the "airplane bootlegger," responsible for much of the fine liquor brought into Chicago from Cuba via airplane, surrendered to the authorities here. He stroled into the court of United States Commissioner H. C. Beitler, revealed his identity and asked what his bond would be. Learning that a $7,500 cash bond was called for, Pinkinson counted off the required sum in Liberty bonds. He denied transporting liquor in his airplane.

DAUGHERTY SEEKS INJUNCTION

Would Restrain Senate Probers from Examining Books.

HEARING TO BE HELD MAY 10

Officials of Midland National Bank at Washington Court House Question Jurisdiction of Senate Committee to Scan the Bank's Books—Probers Would Have Daugherty Cited by the Senate For Contempt.

Washington C. H., O., April 12.—Injunction proceedings were instituted by Mal Daugherty, president of the Midland National bank of this city, to restrain Senators Brookhart and Wheeler of the senate Daugherty committee from examining the bank's books.

Hearing on the injunction will be held May 10.

Mal Daugherty's attorneys, appearing before Senators Wheeler and Brookhart, indicated the former attorney general's brother had rejected the "forthwith" subpoena haling him before the sub-committee. Brookhart announced that the committee hearing in the Cherry hotel here would continue and that he would seek to have Daugherty cited by the senate for contempt.

The committee was examining its witnesses when four attorneys representing the bank and Daugherty entered the room.

Attorney Arthur I. Vorys of Columbus said: "We represent the Midland National bank, Mr. Daugherty and other officials. We desire to question the jurisdiction of this committee to examine the books of the bank or to call witnesses. Our purpose here is to see if the committee desires to co-operate with us to settle this matter."

Senator Wheeler shot back: "Our purpose in coming here was to see those books; that's what we came for."

Brookhart asked: "Do these witnesses decline to appear?" Vorys answered: "Yes, our purpose is to make a clear question of the power of the committee." Wheeler then said: "Well, that's all."

Russell McFarland was the first witness. McFarland spent two weeks here as an investigator for Senator Wheeler. He admitted he had investigated tax receipts for Harry M. Daugherty for 1920 and 1921.

In 1920, McFarland told the committee, the tax receipts credited Daugherty with owning 500 shares of Wright-Martin stock. In 1921, he said, the records showed he owned 2,500 shares. Senator Brookhart interposed with: "If I'm not mistaken the Wright-Martin company was indicted for war frauds and never prosecuted."

J. P. Phelan, assistant national bank examiner for the second federal reserve district, said he found $75,000 in certificates on deposit in the bank in the name of Harry Daugherty, and four certificates canceled in the name of J. E. and J. A. Gray and indorsed on the back by Harry Daugherty.

Sixty-three thousand dollars in liberty bonds in the name of Jesse Smith also was in the bank, Phelan said, and $4,000 in canceled certificates in the name of J. E. Gray, but that close inquiry failed to reveal Gray's identity.

Reil Gallen, mayor of Washington C. H., was quizzed. He said he had never known anyone by the name of J. E. Gray.

HERE AND THERE

Body of Charles Blair, whom Mrs. Johanna Tell confessed in New York to having killed, was found in a pit on his farm at Killingsworth, Conn.

"Extreme carelessness and neglect in operation" were responsible for the wreck on the Union Traction company's lines near Ingalls, Ind., on Feb. 2, in which 16 passengers were killed, W. E. Borland, director of the bureau of safety, reported to the interstate commerce commission.

Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of the wireless telegraph, and his wife, who was the Hon. Beatrice O'Brien, half-sister of Lord Inchiquin, have been divorced at Rome. Mme. Marconi immediately married the Marquis La borio Marignoli.

Sumner Welles, American commissioner to the Dominican republic, has been instructed by President Coolidge to offer the friendly assistance of the United States for establishment of peace in Honduras.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Wheat Hit by Weather.

Columbus, April 12.—Wheat in Ohio is in less favorable condition than last year, according to C. J. West, statistician for the state-federal crop reporting service. Wheat conditions are favorable throughout the north and northwestern counties, but central and southern sections have suffered severe effects from weather. Only half a normal crop will be reaped in some counties, West predicted. A crop of 550,000,000 bushels is forecast for the United States, as compared with 572,000,000 bushels last year and 590,000,000 bushels as an average for the last five years.

Attacks Securities Department.

Akron, O., April 12.—Charging that crooked stock promoters have been allowed to swindle Ohio investors of millions of dollars, Attorney General Crabbe attacked the state securities department. Crabbe defended his ruling which recently eliminated "card" prohibition agents in Ohio. He declared this action had been his most important contribution to the dry cause during the 10 years he has been fighting for prohibition.

To List Autos For Taxes.

Cleveland, April 12.—Names of automobile owners who do not file returns or who do not include their automobiles in their tax returns will go on a special tax duplicate under a plan worked out by County Auditor Zangerle. Assessments will be based on information from the applications for licenses. It is up to the owner to notify the auditor if he sells his car or moves out of the county.

Dry Agents Indicted.

Cleveland, April 12.—Lloyd Gordon, Harry Wright and Phil Prince, dry agents operating out of Justice of the Peace Sam Kest's court, were indicted by the grand jury here for alleged bribery with a count for neglecting their duties in criminal cases. They are charged with soliciting and accepting $30 from Charles Cardone to "fix" prohibition violation charges.

Struck by Falling Pole.

Lancaster, O., April 12.—Ben Garrison, 33, of Bremen, died of a fractured skull, which he received when a telephone pole fell across his auto near here. Elmer Widener, 25, of Sugar Grove, riding with Garrison, is in a serious condition.

Finds Body of Brother.

Newark, O., April 12.—The body of Clarence Hupp, 30, was found at his home near Thornville, O., by a brother. It is believed he had committed suicide by shooting. He had been dead three days.

Infant Drowned.

Marion, O., April 12.—Robert Mitchell, 3, fell in a cistern at his parents' home and was drowned. Fire Chief J. McFarland used a pulmotor for an hour in a vain effort to revive the child.

Inhaled Gas Fumes.

Columbus, April 12.—Joseph Potter, 64, a retired farmer of Worthington, this county, died at his home from the effects of gas fumes inhaled in an effort to get relief from toothache.

Graduate Nurses to Meet.

Columbus, April 12.—The Ohio State Association of Graduate Nurses will hold its twenty-first annual convention in Memorial hall here, beginning Tuesday. From 700 to 1,000 nurses are expected at the sessions, over which Miss Augusta Condit of the District Nurses' association of Columbus will preside.

Woman Fatally Burned.

Cleveland, April 12.—An explosion, believed to have been caused by leaking gas, destroyed a one-story frame building and probably fatally burned Mrs. Anna Sagro, 37, owner of a grocery store in the building.

EXPERTS' REPORT IS ACCEPTED

Reparations Commission Recommends It to Allies.

GERMANY'S AGREEMENT LIKELY

Report, the Reparations Commission Says, Offers Practical Basis For Rapid Solution of the Reparations Problem—Attitude of Allied Governments Favorable to Acceptance of Dawes Proposals.

Paris, April 12.—The report of the Dawes committee of experts has been accepted by the reparations commission.

The commission recommended its acceptance by the allied governments in the event that Germany agrees to the Dawes proposals.

The reparations commission stated it considers the Dawes report offered a practical basis for rapid solution of the reparations problem, and "therefore within the limits of its power approves the conclusions and adopts the methods therein set forth." The commission adds that it is "obliged to reserve its approval and action until Germany declares its willingness to collaborate in execution of the plan."

The action of the commission came with unexpected suddenness after the various members had reported upon the attitude of their governments. Louis Barthou, French member, announced France's acceptance. Sir John Bradbury, British member, informed his colleagues that the British labor cabinet had approved the plan. The Belgian and Italian members fell into line and acceptance of the proposals was announced with the provision that Germany must accept them as a whole. At the same time word came from Berlin that the German government virtually had decided to accept the report.

The plan now will be sent to the allied governments for separate consideration.

The reparations commission decided to hear the German report on its decision on April 17, or later, if the Marz government had not decided by that time.

THOM SON LOAN AIRED

Had No Connection With His Oil Holdings, Witness Says.

Washington, April 12.—The senate oil committee was told that William Boyce Thompson, finance chairman of the Republican national committee, made loans of $150,000 to the committee. William Wallace, Jr., Thompson's secretary, was the witness. Wallace appeared for Thompson, who, he said, was in an Arizona sanitarium undergoing treatment.

Wallace denied any connection between Thompson's "backing" of the party strong box and his Sinclair holdings. Thompson, he said, sold all his Sinclair interests in 1921 and resigned his position as a director of the oil corporation. "Mr. Thompson suffered heavy losses in the sum total of his Sinclair operations," Wallace added.

James Sloan, former Washington manager for Samuel Ungorleider & Company, Cleveland brokers, denied before the committee that he solicited business from members of the government, and denied that he accepted business under assumed names.

War Prisoner Overlooked.

Washington, April 12.—Nicholas Zogg, who was sentenced at Los Angeles on Aug. 21, 1918, to serve 10 years for conspiracy to defeat the draft laws, apparently was overlooked when President Coolidge commuted the sentences of all "political prisoners." With all allowances off for good behavior, Zogg's sentence would not ordinarily expire until July 22, 1925. But the joint amnesty committee, which has obtained the release of 125 prisoners since its organization two years ago, is endeavoring to have Zogg's term commuted immediately.

New York Dry Bill Dead.

Albany, N. Y., April 12.—New York state will not have a prohibition enforcement statute written on its books this year. Following a short battle in the senate, the proposed law was effectively killed when Senator Walker, majority floor leader, refused to grant a special rule bringing the three bills comprising the act out of the codes committee for consideration of the senate. This automatically killed the measure for this, the last, session of the year.

BANKER MCGRAW HEARD

Quotes Daugherty as Saying He Would Prosecute Land Frauds.

Washington, April 12.—J. J. McGraw, banker of Tulsa, Okla., was questioned by the senate Daugherty committee. He said he knew Harry M. Daugherty "very well," and also knew the defendants in the Indian land frauds cases in Oklahoma. McGraw formerly was Republican national committeeman from Oklahoma. He had a "general knowledge" of the Miller brothers' land deals, the witness said, but had not been consulted by them in the deals. After indictments were returned the Millers "talked to him," he said, and he "always advised them to contest" the cases. McGraw quoted Daugherty as saying he would prosecute the land fraud cases.

McGraw said he told George Miller that his employment of a Columbus attorney, Daugherty's law partner, was a mistake. McGraw was defeated for re-election as national committeeman by the late Jake Hamon. He said he had "never heard" stories of extraordinary expenditures by Hamon in the Harding campaign until they came up before senate investigating committees. He said he doubted the stories.

Official Canvass Sought.

Chicago, April 12.—An official canvass of the vote cast in the Illinois primary for Senator McCormick and former Governor Charles Deneen will be necessary to decide the winner of the Republican senatorial nomination, it was declared by supporters of both candidates. With a number of precincts missing the count stood: Deneen 253,742; McCormick 250,292. McCormick supporters plan to petition for an official canvass.

FEDERAL SURVEY MADE

American Women Purchase More Shoes Than the Men.

Washington, April 12.—Statistics compiled by the department of commerce show that women buy more shoes than men and that the demand for genuine footwear is always great in the spring. Therefore, shoe manufacturers have produced 361,000 pairs of women's shoes than men's during the month of January. The total number of women's, men's and children's shoes manufactured in 1920 American factories during the last month of the year was 26,397,000 pairs. Of this number 8,213,000 pairs were of the feminine variety and 7,852,000 pairs were men's boots and shoes. The balance included children's, infants', athletic and miscellaneous kinds of boots, shoes and slippers.

De Valera's Release Sought.

Washington, April 12.—A move to have congress intercede to obtain the release from prison of Eamonn De Valera, the Irish independence leader, was made by Representative Boylan (Dem., N. Y.). Boylan put in a resolution calling upon Secretary Hughes to furnish all information in his possession bearing upon De Valera's imprisonment.

Porpoises Great Eaters

Porpoises live on fish, and recent examinations of the stomachs of the porpoises show that it takes many fish to keep them from having that hollow feeling. A clew to the number of fish on the dietary list of an active porpoise may be had from the number of otoliths or earbones of fish found in the stomach of the sea mammal. One porpoise has yielded enough of these to account for the consumption of 7,596 fish, and since these otoliths are thought to be dissolved in the stomach in a period of no great length, the fish-eating proclivities of the porpoise may be estimated.

Paper Film Invented

A recent British invention, which may completely revolutionize the film industry, enables paper films to be projected on the screen by means of reflection from light placed in front of the reels, not behind them, as at present. These new paper films are said to possess many advantages over the ordinary celluloid kind. They are non-inflammable, they do not crack or tear, and last considerably longer than celluloid. They can also be made very cheaply, and may be sent through the mails in ordinary paper wrappers.

"Black" Foxes

The true black fox is black all over with the exception of the tip of the tail, which is white, but such animals are rare indeed, according to sportsmen of authority. The silver, or silver-gray, is virtually the same color save that the back shoulders are shot with more or less gray hairs; the less light hairs there are, the more valuable the pelt. Foxes that have a small amount of these hairs are classed as black. The cross fox is a mixture of the dark fox and the ordinary red one, rusty colored patches being visible at different points, especially on the shoulders and the rump. As in the case of the silver, the more black on the cross fox the greater the value of the fur.

Another "Poor Fish"

"You poor fish!"
This remark was overheard in the New York aquarium. In these city institutions they always try to instruct the public.

"You poor fish!"
An attendant immediately approached, bowed politely to the lady, and said: "They do not mind being in the tanks. There they are well fed and also protected from their natural enemies. It is doubtful if they know their liberty is in any way restricted. So you need not feel sorry for the fish."

But the lady was addressing her remarks to her husband.

Deep Soil Is Required for Growing Licorice

Licorice belongs to the pea and bean tribe. In this country the plants flower scarcely once in ten years, and they do not ever appear to bear seed! As long ago as the Sixteenth century licorice was first grown in Pontefract, near Leeds. Pontefract possesses an unusual depth of soil, without which it is impossible to grow the plant.

The whole usefulness of the plant lies in the root, which grows to a depth of over six feet. This contains a substance known as glycyrrhizin, and it is this transparent yellow juice which gives licorice its medicinal qualities and its distinctive flavor.

The plants are propagated by sets or stools something in the style of rhubarb, and in Pontefract these sets are guarded with the utmost care. Nowadays there are probably not more than eight or ten growers.

The roots often take five years to mature, and for the first two or three years other vegetables are grown between the rows of licorice.

In its raw form licorice looks rather like a dark kind of glue. It is boiled down in a cauldron with treacle and sugar to give it the desired flavor. Later it is pressed out into a pliable mass and carried to tables, where girls make it up.

After pounding it to the correct degree of pliancy, the workers break off pieces, which they pull out into a kind of string; and then at enormous speed they nip off small pieces and throw them onto a tray in long rows. In Pontefract 500 people are employed in this industry.—London Tit-Bits.

No Escape

Shrieks and yells of the most appalling type were issuing from the little cottage, and quite a crowd had collected. Presently, clothed in the full majesty and dignity of the law, a policeman came striding onto the scene.

"Now, then," he cried gruffly, "what is all this about?"

"Please, sir," spoke up a small boy, "that's only my brother. He's crying because mamma's eyesight ain't very good and she's deaf, too."

A ghastly series of shrieks interrupted the explanation.

"He must be a very feeling little fellow," remarked the officer, wiping away a furtive tear.

"Yes, sir, he is. You see, ma's mending his trousers, and he's got them on."—Los Angeles Times.

Scarce Articles

At the club they were talking of germs and germ carriers. One member maintained that kisses carried germs. Another considered paper money the chief offender.

"Your opinions are merely vague guesses," declared a third. "What have the scientists found out on the subject?"

Nobody knew. A college professor drifted in and they called on him.

"We were discussing germ carriers, professor. What do the scientists have to say about kisses and paper money?"

"Kisses and paper money, eh?" echoed the professor. "The average scientist has had little experience with either."

Knew Her Dad

A small child was having her first ride in a subway train. Suddenly the train passed over a switch and the lights went out for a moment.

When they went up again, the little girl said: "Did you do that, daddy?"

Daddy denied it.

"Well," replied his small daughter, "it's just the sort of thing you would do."

His Reputation

"Prisoner," said the magistrate, "you have already been sentenced 11 times for vagrancy, violent assault, embezzlement, theft and so on."

"Would you mind not speaking so loud, your worship?" was the reply. "My intended father-in-law is in court, and you might damage my prospects."

Absent

A negro woman was telling a friend that she had been to a wedding. She described the bride's white satin gown, the veil, the slippers, the flowers, and everything.

"And what did the bridegroom wear?" asked the friend.

"Well, do you know, that good-for-nothing fellow never showed up at all."

Symptoms

"Pardon me, professor, but last night your daughter accepted my proposal of marriage. I have called this morning to ask if there is any insanity in your family."

"There must be."—Yale Record.

Smart Outfit for Warm Spring Days

Daintily Embroidered Dress of Black Rep—Hat of Green Straw.

One of the Parisienne milliners who favors the small hat is Georgette, who shows several of the smallest straw crowns, brimless and trimmed either with flowers or embroidery. Conservative and also likely to please the American women are some of this same designer's costumes for the street. One in especial is a model in the magpie combination. A coatlike chemise of black rep is open in the front over a tunic of white organdie which shows a band of the black at the bottom. It is lavishly traced in embroidery, and large patch pockets and the turn-back cuffs are trimmed in the same way. The collar, a rather large coat collar effect, is in the plain white material. This is the sort of dress that the smart woman likes to wear on the avenue in the early spring days when it is warm enough to appear without a coat.

Another costume deserving of attention, and perhaps adoption, is also by Georgette. It is named Florida and is of a brown and beige mixture in jersey, with a cape to match. The frock is simple and straight, with a very low waistline, marked with the narrowest of belts. The cape is almost straight enough to be called a scarf. It hangs with two sharp points at the front and is bordered all the way around with grebe feathers. One could wear a suit or costume like this in the very

Famous Lawsuits That Lasted Over Century

The recent case, in which a couple of years elapsed between the commission of a crime and its discovery, falls far short of a record.

The famous case of Eugene Aram, which later formed the subject of the novel by Lytton and the poem by Hood, is a leading one, for the murder was committed in 1745, and Aram was executed in 1750. In the same century a man named Horne was executed for the murder of his child 35 years earlier, and there is also the case of Governor Wall, who was hanged in 1802 for a murder committed in 1762.

Apart from capital crimes, the law's delays have always been notorious. It was stated recently, for instance, that a lawsuit about some land, which had started in 1776, had just been finally settled, and a litigant is even now suing the United States government over property alleged to have been alienated during the American Revolutionary war.

A well-known barrister used to recall a remarkable case of this kind. In 1868 he prosecuted, as counsel for the Crown, a man who was charged with stealing a leaf from a parish register in 1803.—London Tit-Bits.

Imported Foreign Art

The aggregate value of foreign art importations since 1910, the year following that in which such works upward of twenty years old were permitted free of duty into the country free of duty, is estimated at $350,000,000, an average of over $29,000,000 annually. For 1922 art imports from Europe were valued at about $33,000,000.

early spring and through the summer, as it is sure to be distinctive with its unusual trimming.

One of our best known houses on this side has been showing some unusual street costumes, all of which show some sort of wrap or wrap effect so that one appears to be dressed with particular care even if the garment is really in one piece. A black satin dress has a sleeveless cape snapped onto a line of embroidery which runs from the shoulders and crosses the skirt in an embroidered X. The cape stops at the hip line and the long tight sleeves trimmed with the same embroidery give the effect of a complete costume, which is indeed the case.

Buttons Important in Dress Decorations

Jet buttons, large and small, are very smart and decorative on all black gowns, and some heavy, handsomely cut shapes add greatly to the style of a costume. Buttons set with rhinestones, some in the form of circles, buckles, crescents, diamonds and squares, are very dainty and are seen on some of the exclusive models imported by American houses, sparingly used, and serving to point up most daintily afternoon and evening gowns of silk or satin, velvet, lace, tulle, chiffon.

For the simpler frocks, tub dresses, blouses and sweater jackets are seen, some with buttons that are lovely and most appropriate. They are of white bone or ivory, in colors and decorated, and in mother of pearl.

Novelties for Gowns That Have No Colors

For the costume without a hint of color there are shown some Parisian novelties of jet, made thus: Squares, ovals or round bits of jet, the surface cut in prisms, are joined with fine strands of jet beads, these solid pieces being quite far apart, especially when they are unusually large, all of it fastening with a handsome clasp of jet.

These girdles are equally good on gowns of black or white. The girdles of jet in which rhinestones are blended are stunning, while those of all brilliants, or brilliants and pearls, are works of art, and are the making of any dress on which they are worn.

AMUSEMENTS

An exact reproduction of a famous Italian garden in Rome, Italy, this set occupied an acre of floor space. Fifteen thousand square feet of grass were transplanted from fields near Hollywood, while hundreds of plants, flower bushes, vines and shrubs were rooted and actually growing as the camera registered the scene.

A fish pond, with seventy-five goldfish, is in the center of the garden, while two costly statues and a fountain preserve the likeness of the original in Rome. Concrete banisters with several tall columns and a broad garden walk, constructed by a force of fifteen workmen and utilizing more than thirty tons of concrete, are but partial examples of the labor that went into the construction of the big set.

The theme, of "The Marriage Maker" is most unusual. From the woods and fields comes a creature who figures largely in the love affairs of four persons and to set an example for thousands of others. Charles de Roche, as the Faun, also known as Prince Sylvani, is an outstanding figure in "The Marriage Maker." He brings a solution to all difficulties encountered by Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt, featured in the principal roles. He is a firm believer that money is the root of all evil, and so forces an introduction for himself among civilized people for the purpose of helping humankind to overcome this evil. How the Faun brings happiness to all concerned makes an interesting picture.

PLANS TO SALVAGE SUNKEN WARSHIPS

England Lets Contract to Raise German Fleet.

London.—The German fleet is to be raised. The admiralty has entered into a contract for its salvage with a London firm.

Since the memorable 21st of June, 1919, with one or two exceptions, the ships have lain as they sank, a menace to shipping and a worry to a harassed lighthouse service in maintaining numerous buoys and beacons. For though the name Scapa Flow only attained a world-wide significance during the war, its waters have been well known and much frequented by mariners in all ages.

Less than an hour after the first ship had sunk five years ago, rumors were current that there were strange happenings in the Flow, writes a correspondent. As the naval authorities at that time were in possession of all the telephone systems in the country, I decided to test the inviolability of naval secrecy. So to naval headquarters in Kirkwall I went.

"I know," I said to the officer in charge, "that you can't tell me anything, but is it worth my while to take a run eight miles on the road?"

"Well worth your while."

Thus it was that I witnessed one of the most dramatic incidents of the war. Witnessed Sinking of Fleet. I saw battleships, battle cruisers and cruisers sink almost imperceptibly until their decks reached the level of the sea, then wallow and founder on their sides, and simply disappear. One moment a dull gray side, like some huge whale. The next, nothing to mark the spot but a patch of water boiling like a cauldron.

I witnessed the frantic efforts to beach the great Hindenburg. But our naval men were too late. She settled down in the mud close to the little island of Cava, and there she still lies, huge masts and funnels rearing themselves from the water into space. The cruiser Bremen was beached near the air station at Swanbister, but she had lost all stability. With her bow hard on the ground she lurched drunkenly for a minute or two, then broke her back and fell on her side.

The German liners sank at their moorings. At low tide parts of their hulls are exposed, danger spots on which numerous fishing trawlers have stranded and held fast until released by the rising tide. Further to the south the destroyers lie, opposite the now deserted naval harbor works at Lyness, near the island of Hoy. Their masts jut from the water at regular intervals, like some broken-down fence.

The navy's salvage efforts were not entirely fruitless. Some ships, both great and small, were saved and were taken south for disposal. The salvage operations now commenced are not on any large scale. These ships were purchased over a year ago by a small company in Strom, raised and brought into harbor for breaking up.

Speculation is Profitable.
It is believed that the speculation has proved very remunerative. Strange uses have been found for portions of these engines of war. Boiler tubes have been polished and sold literally by the thousands for such household purposes as casement curtain rods. Last year a company purchased some of the destroyers. Operations went on for some months last summer and it was understood that in the event of these proving successful the company had an option on the remainder of the fleet. A certain amount of material was brought ashore, but no ship was raised.

When the salvage ship proceeded to its home port last fall it was stated that operations would be recommenced in the spring, but it is not known how this company is affected by the contract now entered into between the admiralty and the London firm.

It is evident that the operations shortly to commence are to be on a really big scale. We in Orkney have little knowledge of the methods of salvors, but to the unskilled the operation of raising the smaller ships, and even the Hindenburg squatting on the mud, does not seem by any means insuperable. The hulls are whole.

The scuttling was affected by opening the sea cocks. If these can be closed and the hatchways sealed, then does not the problem simply resolve itself into one of pumping till we see the German fleet resurrected? In the past year or so the East Coast Salvage company has carried out two similar operations in the Orkneys.

Polish War Office to Bar Finery on Women

Warsaw.—An edict against the wearing of silk stockings and other finery by women employees of the war department has just been issued by General Sikorski, minister of war.

Somehow the department gained the reputation of being a good marriage mart, most of the stenographers leaving to be married after a year's service.

General Sikorski heard of it, reviewed the staff and, finding the women dressed in elaborate clothes, issued an order that they wear dark, high-collared dresses, high shoes and cotton or wool stockings.

MALADY SIGNS ARE FOUND AT LUCKEY, O.

Symptoms of the hoof and mouth disease have been found in a shipment of 38 steers received at Luckey, Ohio, according to reports that came to C. V. Truax, state director of agriculture recently. The steers came from the St. Paul Stock yards and three of them showed the symptoms. Mr. Truax learned. It has not been determined definitely whether the disease, itself, is present in the herd. Mr. Truax said but he immediately ordered State Veterinarian F. A. Zimmer and Dr. DeFosset, new federal inspector in Ohio, to Luckey to make the necessary tests of the animals.

Since calves are susceptible, one was inoculated with the secretions from a suspected animal and final decision on the symptoms found will be determined by the calf's reaction. The stock yards at Luckey and all cars on sidings in that vicinity were placed in quarantine and a state veterinarian assigned there by Mr. Truax to see that the quarantine is respected.

The two veterinarians assigned to the case made an investigation at Fostoria, where the steers had been fed on their way to Luckey, but found nothing there of value to them.

Red Cap of Liberty

The liberty cap is a famous symbol for freedom. It appears on the head of liberty on several American coins and on the seals of several Central and South American republics. In ancient Rome a freed slave was given the conical Phrygian headdress, from which the modern liberty cap is copied. Brutus and Cassius used the symbol on coins struck after the assassination of Julius Caesar.

At the outbreak of the French revolution the bonnet rouge, or red cap, was adopted as the badge of the "patriots," and Louis XVI was forced to wear it June 20, 1792, when he was paraded through the streets by the mob which had burst into his palace.

It is not certain that the red cap of the French revolutionists was a revival of the Roman tradition, but its significance is the same.—Detroit News.

Too Much Argument

Two drovers were sitting in the inn of an English village. They had been sitting there for nearly an hour, and so far neither had spoken. At last one of them opened his mouth.

"Didst see old brown cow on the moor?" he asked.

Another half hour elapsed. Then the second drover spoke. "It wasn't brown cow," he said. "Twas brown bull."

Silence then for another half hour. The first man rose and made for the door.

"Going?" queried the other.

"Aye," came the reply. "Far too much argument here for me."

LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Lewis C. Odaffer Died at Her Home in Ashville Friday.

Mrs. Anice Rader Odaffer, wife of Lewis C. Odaffer, of Ashville, died at her home Friday morning, April 11, at 2:30 o'clock. She had been ill for over a year of complications.

Mrs. Odaffer was born at Waverly July 9, 1862, and was the daughter of James and Mary Ann Shock Rader. She was married March 6, 1889 to Lewis C. Odaffer. Her husband and two sons survive. The sons are Harold C. Odaffer, of near Ashville and Ray Odaffer, a student at the Ohio university, Athens.

Of her immediate family there are living three sisters and six brothers. They are Miss Nettie Rader, Mrs. Ralph D. Head and Mrs. Cora Hood, of Pickaway township; McClelland Rader, Shelby, Ind.; Dennis C. Rader, of Ashville; Burr H. Rader, of Pickaway township; Florence Rader, of Waverly; W. AT THE COURT HOUSE

Suit in Partition.

Oliver C. Peters and Mary E. Noecker have filed a suit in partition in common pleas court against Kenneth Blue in which they ask for the partition of the estate of the late William M. Peters. The plaintiffs each claim an undivided one-third part each of the estate. Charles Gerhardt represents the plaintiffs.

Noah Devault, indicted on the charge of burglary, plead not guilty and his trial was set for Thursday, April 24. I. F. Snyder will be his counsel.

Roy Waliser indicted on a burglary charge, plead not guilty. It developed that the prisoner can not be prosecuted in the court of common pleas, as he is but seventeen years of age. He will be sent to the juvenile court for hearing.

Walling O. Raver, charged with embezzlement, plead not guilty and his hearing is set for Wednesday, April 23. I. F. Snyder and Milt Morris are his counsel.

Prisoners Arraigned.

Roy McCrocklin and Dudley Farley, indicted by the April grand jury on the charge of burglary, plead guilty before Judge Curtin in common pleas court and were sentenced to a year in the Mansfield reformatory.

Guardianship Upheld.

In the matter of the guardianship of Lizzie A. Valentine, in which she asked for the removal of her guardian Emanuel Valentine, the court refused to order the removal. The applicant was represented by Hamilton & Horner, of Columbus, and the defendant by G. G. Adkins and C. A. Weldon.

Appointed Executor.

Marriage License.

Earl S. Banier, 27, steel worker, Portsmouth, and Juliet Farmer, 22, Circleville.

Ancestor of Kings

The long line of British sovereigns, and the present king himself, have owed their place in life, and their right of succession, to an illicit love for a peasant girl who pounded clothes upon a stone beside a Norman stream. The father of William of Normandy looked down from his castle window one day on a line of washers by the stream side. His fancy was fascinated by the peculiar grace and beauty of one of them, a young girl of humble parentage, and she became the mother of William the Conqueror.

To this day the washtubs for the clothes of Normandy are just as they were before the Conquest—the running streams, or little slab-lined pools at their edges. The women kneel on rows of stones laid just in the current of the stream, or around the pools. The washing is done by beating the clothes vigorously upon rocks.—Kansas City Star.

Early Seeding of Oats Is Favored

Crop Develops Best in Cool Weather and Frequently Is Hurt by Heat.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The first essential for the production of maximum yields of oats is early seeding. In most sections oats should be sown as early as it is possible to get on the land to prepare a seed bed. This crop develops best in cool weather and frequently is injured by a few hot days during the ripening period. For this reason early seeding is practically always advisable, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

The date of seeding largely depends on the locality and season. In the corn belt the best time usually is during the latter part of March or early April. In the more northern oat sections seeding usually is not possible until late April. In backward and unfavorable seasons the seeding may have to be delayed until early May.

Plowing Not Favored.

Where oats follow corn, potatoes, or other cultivated crops, the land should not be plowed as a rule, but should be disked and harrowed sufficiently to make a loose, friable seed bed about 3 inches deep. Spring plowing usually results in a less satisfactory seed bed, as there is not sufficient time for the soil to become well settled before seeding. Further, spring plowing is more expensive, and thus adds to the cost of production.

It always is good practice to sow the best seed obtainable. Usually home-grown seed of a standard variety is better than seed brought in from a distance and therefore of uncertain adaptability. All seed should be cleaned and graded.

Seeding with the grain drill requires less seed than broadcasting, insures a more even distribution of the seed in space and in depth and, as a consequence, a quicker germination and a more uniform stand. Satisfactory yields usually follow. Under the more humid conditions, particularly in the corn belt, where a good seed bed is prepared, the usual rate of seeding is from 8 to 10 pecks. In the dry-land sections, 4 to 6 pecks usually produce the most satisfactory results.

Grow Mixed Varieties.

In a survey of oat varieties made by the Department of Agriculture a few years ago, it was shown that a large percentage of farmers still grow mixed varieties, or "just oats." With the increasing number of selected and improved varieties on the market, there is every reason for growing these in preference to mixed or unadapted varieties. The idea still is prevalent that any variety of oats under favorable conditions will produce as high yields as an improved, well adapted variety, but this is not borne out by the facts.

For the northeastern states such varieties as Comewell, Lincoln, Silvermine, and Swedish Select usually produce the most satisfactory yields. In the corn belt earlier varieties are better adapted. Kherson and the various selections developed from it, such as Albion, Iowar, Richland, and States Pride, are to be recommended. For the oat section immediately to the north of the corn belt, such midseason varieties as Green Russian, Swedish Select, Silvermine, Victory, and Lincoln, usually are preferable. In the southwestern spring-oat section, including Missouri, Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas, the Red Rustproof varieties are the best adapted. Kanota, a strain of Fulghum, has become very popular in Kansas, and is now attracting attention in adjoining states. For the Pacific Northwest and irrigated sections midseason white strains of the Silvermine and Swedish Select types are the most suitable.

Causes of Tuberculous Infection Among Cattle

The causes of persistent tuberculous infection in herds of cattle under the supervision of state and federal officers are outlined in a recent report by the United States Department of Agriculture on the progress of the eradication of bovine tuberculosis.

Among the causes are: Exposure to infected animals at county fairs, streams contaminated by tuberculosis material, infected water in ponds, silage infected from hog litter, and additions of tuberculous cattle to the herd.

One instance reported was of a herd of 13 head that had "tested clean" and was put on exhibit at a county fair. Eleven of the herd were placed opposite an infected herd so that they faced them. On retesting, the eleven all reacted and the two that were stalled elsewhere passed clean.

Soy Beans for Pasturing Sheep and Hogs Are Fine

Soy beans can be used for pasture for all kinds of stock, but is better for sheep and hogs than cattle. In late summer and early autumn when other pastures are short, soy beans furnish a satisfactory forage. The cattle may be turned in as soon as the beans are well grown, but they trample the crop down badly, and for that reason it is more profitable to use the pasture for hogs. By sowing the beans in rows there is less loss by trampling. Hogs make best gains on soy-bean pasture when fed some corn in addition. It would not pay to sow soy beans especially for a summer pasture for beef cattle.

Glass-Silk Fiber

Venus' basket is a glass-silk sponge which grows in the tropical seas of the Pacific, from the Fujiyama region to the Indian ocean. By the Japanese it is called the mineral silk sponge, and is used for its fiber, which is woven into chemical fiber cloths, into fireproof candlesticks and into delicate fireproof curtains.

In its natural state the glass sponge is covered with these long silky fibers which are used in the arts referred to. A small tuft of these fibers covers the base. The specimens are raked up from the ocean bed, and the framework, which cannot be separated into fiber for weaving, is employed in the covering of steamships and in cold-storage insulation, where it has been found equal to asbestos. Certain specimens are said to measure fully forty inches in length and three to four inches in diameter.

STARTING ENGINE IN ZERO WEATHER

Priming Is Probably the Best Way Out of Predicament —Warm Up Slowly.

(By ERWIN GREEN, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)
To start an automobile engine in zero weather is quite a problem, the difficulty of which depends upon the construction and size of the engine, the quality of fuel used, the strength of the spark, and, of course, the height of the mercury in the thermometer at the particular time.

As a first aid in starting, priming is probably the best way out of the predicament. There are many ways of priming an engine. The chief idea of priming is to get a rich explosive mixture that will fire the instant it touches the spark gaps. After the engine has been coaxed into starting it will—if so inclined—get up enough speed to run upon its customary allowance of gasoline. To make doubly sure it is advisable to pull out the primer a short distance to make the usual mixture slightly richer than normal until the engine obtains sufficient heat for average carburetion.

Take Time in Warming Up.
Take time in warming up the engine. Don't stamp your foot down on the accelerator and allow the engine to race like a breakdown Lewis gun, for with the poor lubrication, it usually results in serious damage. It is bound to have a bad effect if practiced regularly. Run the engine slowly for three or four minutes before setting it to work, and you can economize not only in repair bills, but also in oil and gasoline.

When you start your car on a cold morning, have you noticed that the self-starter whirs a longer time than it did in summer before the engine starts? The self-starter is designed to start the engine and will, if the battery is in proper condition. But bear in mind that the current consumption is not by any means proportional to the time that the self-starter consumes to start the engine.

More Current Demanded.
The greater viscosity of cold oil in winter will make the starting torque so great as to demand three or four times the amount of current from the battery than it did in summer. Therefore, assist the starting motor by providing the rich mixture mentioned. All of this mixture does not reach the cylinders, as much of it will condense on the cold walls of the intake manifold. In doing this you remove a goodly portion of the burden that would otherwise be demanded from the battery.

Homemade Wrench Handy for Many Car Purposes

A monkey wrench is a very handy tool, but it has a bad habit of opening of its own accord, and sometimes results in bruised knuckles, says the Automobile Digest. A complete set of solid wrenches is frequently too expensive for the car owner to purchase; but with a little labor, every car owner can possess a set which will answer every purpose. A wrench can be made from a piece of old pipe, flattened either at one or both ends or in the middle. The flattening is done by heating to redness and hammering. As the common grade of piping has a seam, care should be taken to keep the seam in the center of the flattened portion, rather than near the ends. The opening is produced by first drilling and then filing to shape.

Cause of Dim Lights

Did you ever wonder why the engine does not show the accustomed pep or why the lights burn dimly or the ignition seems poor? Unfasten the wires and bars at the battery terminals and notice if they are clean. They must be clean if current is to flow freely. Scrape off with a stick any green or white deposit you see, and spread a little cup grease over the parts to prevent corrosion.

TEST HOLDING POWER OF 4-WHEEL BRAKES

Leon T. Shepler, automobile dealer of Los Angeles, recently drove his car down the steps of the Third street tunnel to test the holding power of the four-wheel brakes.

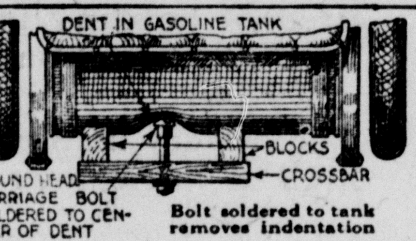

Good Driver Known by:

- His skillful steering.
- His ease of handling.
- His thoughtfulness of pedestrians.
- His properly adjusted steering apparatus.
- His strict obedience to every traffic regulation.
- His extensive and intelligent use of arm signals.
- His use of the brakes before he gets to the curve.
- His protection of his motor; his use of second and first speeds.
- His alternate use of foot and hand brakes on long grades and in emergencies.
- His avoidance of all obstacles, without endangering the occupants of his car, or any other car.
- His respect for railway crossings; he stops, looks and shifts gears before he is actually on the tracks.

Repairing Dented Gas Tank by Simple Plan

If ever the gasoline tank of your car becomes dented, the tank may be repaired simply in this manner:

The first step is to fill the tank with water and drain it, to avoid any possibility of a gasoline explosion when solder is applied. A round-end carriage bolt is then soldered firmly to the center of the dented portion of the tank. A crossbar with two blocks is fitted over the dent so that the threaded end of the bolt passes through it. By means of a nut and washer on the bolt sufficient pressure can be exerted on the depression to draw it out flush. If the hole was made by a collision, the same method may be used and the opening filled with the solder left after the bolt is removed.—M. T., in Popular Science Monthly.

Window in Car Ahead Is Help to Avoid Crashes

The glass window light in the back curtain of the car ahead can be very useful. Through it a lot of dangers can be seen in advance, much to the advantage of the man who is in the wake.

Where cars are running abreast of each other so that the road cannot be seen by looking around the car ahead, it is best to drive just far enough in back of the other car to look through its window light and windshield at the street ahead. When a quick stop is necessary the stopping of the car ahead will not be unexpected—nor so dangerous.

In close congestion where cars are moving very slowly, and only a few feet at a time, the stop signal can be saved a lot of unnecessary flashing, and the battery current saved, if the driver would use his emergency brake.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

Backlash, when in the steering column itself, is usually due to depreciation of the gearing and wear in the various members which support the column.

A dynamo is a machine for converting mechanical energy into an electrical current; a starting motor transforms the electrical current into mechanical energy.

When spark plugs habitually become fouled with oil and soot it is a good plan to investigate and see whether they may not be projecting too far into the combustion chamber.

Malays Build Homes on Posts to Foil Tigers

An American who had seen service abroad as a consul tells of some interesting dwellings in the Orient. The ordinary Malay house is built on posts from five to seven feet high, but sometimes safety measures add considerable to the length of the posts, this being particularly true of tiger-infested districts.

As tigers have been known to leap 18 feet from the ground, a lift of 20 feet is considered the safety limit for prospective builders in such sections. At best the Malay house is a frail and flimsy structure of sticks tied together with rattan, thatched with palm leaves and walled with plaited bamboo or tree bark. It is, therefore, an easy matter for a tiger to break into a house. Many tragedies, with a hungry tiger as the villain, have been recorded. In one case a whole family, with the exception of one man, was killed. He climbed to the roof and thus escaped the notice of the tiger, but was the horrified and helpless witness of the cruel slaughter of his relatives.

Canine Intelligence

"You can't overestimate the intelligence of a dog," declared Col. Spotswood Telfair, of Mountain View, gazing reminiscently at his favorite bound engaged in snapping feebly at the pestiferous flies.

"When Towser was in his prime he had an uncanny way of knowing in advance the sort of game I was going to hunt. For instance, if I left the house carrying a rifle Towser would dash for the woods and trail nothing but squirrels. If I started out with a shotgun Towser would trail nothing but rabbits.

"One day I decided to puzzle the old rascal, so I took down my fishing pole and started to the river. It may sound preposterous, gentlemen, but when I got to the edge of the yard I found that dented dog scratching up fishing worms for me!"—Judge.

For Doors That Stick

If you would avoid in your home the nuisance of doors that stick in moist weather, paint or varnish the tops and bottoms—places that are usually neglected because they don't show. These hidden edges, if not painted, are vulnerable points where the wood absorbs or loses moisture rapidly. Special danger points are the ends of the outside uprights, where the wood grain is exposed.—Popular Science Monthly.

Walk in Faith.

Have faith, then, oh you who suffer for the noble cause; apostles of a truth which the world of today comprehends not; warriors in the sacred fight whom it yet stigmatizes with the name of rebels. Tomorrow, perhaps, this world, now incredulous or indifferent, will bow down before you in holy enthusiasm. Tomorrow victory will bless the banner of your crusade. Walk in faith and fear not.—Mazzini.

 Precept and Practice.
 Many a man who talks about getting a broad, clear view of the beautiful world spends most of his days sitting behind an unwashed window.—Washington Star.

CALVIN COOLIDGE
 President Talks Little and Listens Much—One of the People.
 On a farm in rugged Vermont on the birthday of the nation, he was born. On July 4 next he will be fifty-two years old. He was schooled at a little college in the New England hills. In an old-fashioned American law office he learned to know and reverence the meaning and the purpose of the law. For almost twenty-five years he did the varied tasks of a country lawyer. His neighbors saw him work; they knew the depths that underlay his quiet surface and they gave him their trust. They elected him successively, school director, member of the common council, city attorney, member of the lower house of the state legislature, mayor, four times state senator, twice president of the state senate, three times lieutenant governor — and having found him faithful in lesser things, they made him ruler over many things—they elected him their governor. And then there came to Massachusetts the searching test that has come before and will come again and again to the institutions of finite man—the test of law and order. He had a passionate belief in the supremacy of the law, of the law which the people themselves have slowly wrought for their own protection and the protection of their children. He went to the people on that great issue. He knew and trusted the men who labor with their hands on the farm and in the mill, and these men knew and trusted him. They proved that trust by arising in their might and triumphantly reelecting him their governor. Thus the man whom Massachusetts knew was made known to the whole nation and he was nominated and elected vice president of the United States. On August 3, 1923, he took the oath of office as president of the United States in his father's house on the farm at Plymouth, Vermont.
 Such has been his life.

Because he would be independent, he has been frugal and he has practiced frugality in the administration of public office. Because he would decide on evidence rather than by impulse, he has talked little and listened much. He believes in party government as the most effective method of achieving the ideals of democracy and his work has proved his belief. He has the gift of cooperating with other men and a talent in the selection of strong men. He has simplicity in thought and action. He is free from pretense. He has courage without bluster. He has patience. He has vision. He has tolerance, and in these days of suspicion and misunderstanding tolerance is sorely needed. He has a deep reverent faith in the principles of this government and that faith has been builded out of priceless experience. He has worked for and sympathizes with the countless types of human life that make up democracy. He is a student of books, but of men even more. And when he speaks plain men find their deep, unspoken need and aspirations uttered, because he himself is one of them.
 Such is his character.
 It is over 60 years since the Republican party named its first president. The nation that was a child among the nations now towers above them all. For over 60 years our forbears and ourselves have tried to make the party an effective instrument for the expression of the deep purposes of a mighty nation. Old problems have been solved; new problems have arisen. Men and manners have changed. But still stand the ancient virtues—frugality, simplicity, sincerity, courage, tolerance and faith—yea, above all, faith in plain people.

HUNDREDS ARRESTED
 Liquor Clean Up at Cleveland Hits Drug and Soft Drink Stores.
 Cleveland, April 12.—Warrants were issued for the arrest of proprietors of 125 soft drink places and of 35 drug stores in this city. Approximately 400 defendants are named. More than 30 federal agents, working under the personal supervision of Henry Dykeman, dry chief for the states of Ohio, Indiana and Michigan, have been at work for the past two months collecting evidence preparatory to the cleanup, it was stated. Squads of dry agents, assisted by police and deputy sheriffs, served the warrants. The defendants will be brought before Judge John M. Killam of the United States district court for arraignment.

WRITER ESCAPES DEATH IN RUSSIA

American Says Trotsky Plans New Revolt.

Imprisoned in Moscow for nearly six weeks and under sentence to be shot for being a spy against the soviet government, Richard Eaton, a youthful American newspaper man, with many acquaintances in Washington, is free today because he had the foresight to conceal some money in his shoe, with which he bribed a prison guard to carry a message to British friends. The latter effected his release.
 Eaton, who now is in Washington completing a vacation of about three months, told of his brief but eventful visit into Russia. As a correspondent of the London Daily Mail and Le Matin of Paris, he succeeded in getting in and out of Petrograd, now Leningrad, and went to Moscow. Awakened from his sleep at two o'clock one morning in June of last year, he was confronted by two soldiers, who carried a blank warrant for his arrest. Stripped of all personal belongings, he was taken to the "dog kennel," a small jail housing 35 prisoners at the time in a tiny room with no windows.
 Sentenced by Woman.
 "I was placed in solitary confinement," he related, "and was fed on black bread with one large dish of herring soup from which all the prisoners ate. Then after a few days I was taken before Simanova, the real chief of the foreign department of the Cheka, the secret society which is responsible for the many acts of terrorism which have horrified the world. She is a Russian woman less than thirty years old, a beautiful blonde, with innocent gray-blue eyes. She conducts all the important interrogations and is merciless in her demands for punishment.
 "During my examination I denied being an English spy. She at once said in Russian to an assistant (they thought I only spoke German), 'he must be shot.'
 "So, charged with being a spy and sentenced to death, I was sent to the famous Boutirki prison, where I found that on the day I was arrested the Cheka had arrested 400 priests and eight of the nine archbishops of Moscow. Three hundred priests already were in the prison. There were prisoners for all sorts of queer offenses—one charged with being a counter-revolutionist because he went to church every Sunday.
 Bribed Guard to Aid Him.
 "After a long stay here I bribed a guard to carry a note to some British friends in Moscow and then I was taken to the Loubianker, within which is another prison known as the Vecheka, or 'madhouse.' Only prisoners sentenced to death are placed here. I was put in a cell with five other persons, one a priest, who prayed constantly for twenty-four hours. At the end of this period I was released, but was escorted to the frontier by two Russian soldiers with rifles and fixed bayonets."
 Eaton declared a revolution in Russia is imminent. Trotsky, he said, fell in love with a beautiful Russian woman, Mile. Naunoff, and it was his plan to procure from every European government a passport and a small pension, so that he and his sweetheart could live in peace. The soviet found out his plan and now he is in supposed exile, while in reality, according to Eaton, he is in south Russia rounding up an army of Cossacks to overthrow the present government.
 Bolshevik a Queer Person.
 "They all want a finger in the pie," Eaton said. "The defection of Trotsky is more important than the death of Lenin."
 Living conditions in Moscow, Eaton continued, are about the same as in Washington, if one has the money. The highest legal salary paid is about $20 a month, and ordinary clerical positions bring about $10. "You can't eat meat every day on a salary of that size," he commented.
 The Bolshevik is a queer person. "You've got to know him and deal with him accordingly. When I was arrested I was cross-examined for ten minutes on the question of being a titled American prince or duke, and at the end of that time this fellow still believed it. But it was not until he went into another room and found that America hasn't any nobility that he finally believed me."
 Eaton arrived in Washington about three months ago and went direct to California for a rest. He was born in Seattle, Wash., but has spent much of his time in Europe. In 1922 he was Washington correspondent of the Westminster Gazette.

"Land of Fire" Has Heavy Fall of Snow
 Tierra del Fuego means "Land of Fire," but the past year, at least, it has belied its name, according to Consul A. C. Brady at Punta Arenas, Chili, who says the severest winter in many years has been experienced the last season in Chili and Argentine Patagonia and Tierra del Fuego.
 Much snow has fallen and freezing temperatures have prevailed for long periods since early June. In Punta Arenas the lowest temperature was 6 degrees above zero, but camps in tributary territory have reported 5 to 12 degrees below. Heavy losses of sheep are feared. After a hard winter many animals die.

28 GROUPS OF PIGS TO TELL THEIR STORY.
 More than 150 pigs in 28 experimental groups to be exhibited at the Ohio Experimental Station Livestock day, April 25, will reveal many new wrinkles in raising fall pigs, preventing crampiness, and in feeding for profit.
 Six groups are being hand-fed and six half-fed in comparisons of different rations and the manner of feeding them. Other groups are being used in investigating the cause of posterior lameness of pigs and methods of its prevention.
 Some of the groups will reveal ways of improving such good rations as corn and skimmilk or buttermilk and of corn and tankage. The day's program will include inspections of the sheep, swine and cattle on experiments as well as discussions of the more important results.

What Munsingwear Union Suits did in One Local Garage---

The man who started Munsingwear Union Suits in this garage was a salesman---and he sold the idea to the rest of the organization.
 Next---they went into the repair department and put a stop to the Underwear grind with the men who grind the cylinders.
 Then the tire man got interested---he was tired of bending in Underwear that wouldn't bend---he bought a Munsingwear.
 The battery man was low in Underwear---he's high in spirit now.
 The man at the gas tank---the man with the chamois---the man who adjusts the carbureter and the man who tows you in---they are all wearing Munsingwear Union Suits today and they are all as happy as larks.
